Introduction

The Ontario Review Board (the “Board”) is an adjudicative tribunal established under Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code of Canada. Every province and territory in Canada is required to have a Review Board in order to supervise and determine the issues of liberty for those persons found by the courts to be either unfit to stand trial (‘unfit’) or not criminally responsible (‘NCR’) on account of mental disorder, to maintain jurisdiction over these accused persons and to provide dispositions which maximize the liberty of the individual while safeguarding the public.

History

1892 – In adopting the 19th century draft British Criminal Code as its first Criminal Code, Canada adopted a system for dealing with this population of mentally disordered accused. Within the statutory provisions of that system, the Lieutenant Governor of each province had custody of the mentally disordered accused. The decisions made by the Lieutenant Governor did not require formal input from any body but in most cases an advisory board reviewed and made recommendations to the Lieutenant Governor.

In Ontario, that board was called the Lieutenant Governor’s Board of Review, and it was restricted by law to reporting only its findings, opinions and conclusions to the Lieutenant Governor. Persons who were subject to a Lieutenant Governor’s Warrant were kept in strict custody until the Lieutenant Governor’s pleasure was known through Warrants issued in his or her name.

1991 - The Supreme Court of Canada struck down the system that the Criminal Code set out for dealing with persons found unfit to stand trial or not guilty by reason of insanity, ruling that parts of the system violated the rights of the accused as defined by the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. The Court directed the federal government to develop a new system for the supervision of mentally disordered accused. On February 4, 1992, Bill C-30 was enacted creating Review Boards in every province and territory.

1992 - The Bill C-30 amendments modernized the language of the Criminal Code. Prior to this time, some of the language had been in use for over 100 years. For example, the verdict “not guilty by reason of insanity” was changed to “not criminally responsible” (NCR). Bill C-30 converted the “advisory” boards into adjudicative Review Boards with an expansion of their responsibilities to include the actual making of the “order,” which was now referred to as a “Disposition.” Bill C-30 eliminated automatic “strict custody” following a verdict of NCR in court. Instead, the court is now able to hold a Disposition hearing immediately following the verdict and to make its own Disposition for the accused, although this task is most often left to the Review Boards. The main part of Bill C-30 is found in Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code. Further, for the first time the test of ‘unfit to stand trial’ was included in the Criminal Code.

Bill C-30 also eliminated the role of the Lieutenant Governor in the review process, putting an end to what had been referred to as the Lieutenant Governor’s Warrant system.

2014 – On July 10th, 2014, Bill C-14 came into force. With this legislation many uncontroversial amendments were made. At the same time many changes were made in the face of evidence that those changes would be counter-productive. Of those, the main change surrounds the designation of High Risk Accused. This designation removes the ORB's involvement in the making of an accused's Disposition and places the accused into a maximum secure facility whether or not such a placement is clinically indicated. As a result, this costly amendment may worsen the prognoses of those accused that are so designated.

Mandate

The Board's mandate is to review the cases of individuals who have been found unfit to stand trial or not criminally responsible for the commission of a crime due to a mental disorder.

As mentioned, the Criminal Code mandates that each province and territory establish or designate a Review Board that will oversee people whom a court has found unfit to stand trial or not criminally responsible due to mental disorder:

A Review Board shall be established or designated for each province to make or review Dispositions concerning any accused in respect of whom a verdict of not criminally responsible by reason of mental disorder or unfit to stand trial is rendered, and shall consist of not fewer than five members appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in council of the province... a Review Board shall be treated as having been established under the laws of the province. (s.672.38)

The Ontario Review Board is an independent adjudicative tribunal governed by the Criminal Code of Canada and portions of the Public Inquiries Act. Unlike adjudicative agencies that are created by provincial statute, the Ontario Review Board is not subject to the provisions of the Statutory Powers and Procedures Act. Appeals from decisions of the Ontario Review Board are made directly to the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

The Board is required by law to make annual dispositions for each accused person under its jurisdiction, and in doing so it must take into account the need to protect the public from dangerous persons, the mental condition of the accused, the reintegration of the accused into society and the other needs of the accused. In meeting this mandate, the Board must accord proper consideration to the interests of all those involved in its process. In practical terms, the Board is responsible for conducting over 2000 hearings annually for over 1600 persons under its jurisdiction and to process dispositions and reasons for those dispositions to meet its statutory obligations.

Through quasi-judicial hearings, the Board makes or reviews Dispositions, which delineate the restrictions on the liberty of the accused. Parties to a hearing include: the accused; the person in charge of the hospital in which the accused is detained or to which the accused reports, and may include the Attorney General of the province where the disposition is to be made or from which the accused is transferred; and any other person who has a substantial interest in protecting the interests of the accused.

Overview of Board's Current and Forthcoming Programs/Activities

Core Functions:

The Board's core function is to hold hearings and to make dispositions and render decisions in accordance with Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code.

When a verdict of not criminally responsible on account of mental disorder or unfit to stand trial is rendered, the Review Board must hold a hearing and make a Disposition not later than 45 days after the verdict was rendered. In the event that the court makes an initial disposition, the Review Board has 90 days to review that disposition and make its own.

At the conclusion of a hearing, the Ontario Review Board renders one of three Dispositions:

- 1) An absolute discharge (for NCR's only), if the accused person is not a significant threat to the safety of the public;
- 2) A discharge subject to conditions; or
- 3) Detention in a hospital, subject to conditions.

After making a Disposition, the Review Board must hold another hearing within 12 months, and every 12 months thereafter for as long as the Disposition remains in force, to review any Disposition that it has made in respect of an accused, other than an absolute discharge.

The Review Board issues its Reasons for Disposition as soon as it is practicable after issuing its Disposition.

Accused:

At present, the Board maintains jurisdiction of over 1600 persons.

Pre-Hearing Conferences:

In the last few years, the Board has implemented a pre-hearing conference process to manage complex or potentially lengthy cases, for any case identified by the Board or any party as requiring more than 1.5 hours of hearing time. This process has allowed the Board to best rationalize the time allotted for annual review hearings. This process also plays a key role in ensuring that the Board acts in a proactive manner to identify and narrow issues and to allot appropriate resources to cases that have greater complexity.

The ongoing influx of new accused continues to have a significant financial impact on the Ontario Review Board. The initial hearings for these new accused are more expensive to convene as they must be scheduled on an ad hoc basis and typically require more travel and accommodation. The hearings are held where the accused is being detained or resides. These matters are usually heard singly rather than organized with a group of other cases as are the annual hearings because they need to be conducted within 45 days of the court verdict. There had often been adjournments when insufficient information was available as to the mental condition of the accused or what, if any, threat the accused posed to the safety of the public.

To address this problem, pre-hearing conferences were initiated for all initial hearings where the accused was either detained in jail or living in the community, in order to narrow issues, determine if an assessment is required, and witnesses need to be called. Where an accused is not connected to a hospital at the time of an initial hearing the ORB ensures that there is sufficient information to conduct a hearing. We have reached an arrangement whereby ORB ordered assessments made at this juncture will be funded by the Health Boards Secretariat.

Potential Efficiency measures Being Developed:

- 1) Providing each hearing panel with the technology required to enable them to file disposition memos by e-mail, eliminating some delay. This innovation could also assist in helping panels confirm their decisions and avoid errors and to recognize issues before the panel disbands, so clarification of their decision can be obtained.
- 2) We continue to develop the members' login section of the ORB website where members can access resources.
- 3) A secure portal using technology compliant with Government privacy policies for members to electronically access documents and for safe electronic transfer of reports from psychiatric facilities allowing for faster distribution of hearing materials.
- 4) Transition to electronic distribution and filing of hearing documents in stages with the implementation of the Board's new secure site, case management enhancements and electronic scanning systems to support electronic file management.

Organizational Structure

Board Members:

The Lieutenant Governor in Council appoints each member of the Review Board by an Order-in-Council. The Criminal Code requires the Board to have no fewer than five members. It specifically states that at least one member must be qualified to practice psychiatry. In the event that there is only one such member, there must be one other member who has "training and experience in the field of mental health and is entitled to practice medicine or psychology." Members of the Ontario Review Board must be residents of Ontario.

The Chairperson must be a judge of the Federal Court or of a provincial superior, district or county court, or a person who has retired from or is entitled to be appointed to such a judicial office. "Chairperson" by definition includes not only the Chairperson as appointed by the provincial Cabinet, but also any other qualified member who the Chairperson designates as an "Alternate Chairperson" to act on the Chairperson's behalf. A quorum of the Board consists of the Chairperson, a psychiatrist and "any other member."

As of December 31, 2017, the Ontario Review Board had 170 members. In addition to a full time Chair, the Ontario Review Board's part time members include 37 alternate chairs, 25 legal members, 61 psychiatrists, 16 psychologists, and 30 public members. All are residents of Ontario. The members of the Ontario Review Board are appointed by Order-in-Council.

Members of the Board are located around the province and hearings can be provided in English or in French.

Staff Numbers

The Board's operations are supported by a staffing complement of 18 members consisting of the positions listed below.

1. Chair
2. Registrar and Senior Manager
3. Executive Assistant
4. Deputy Registrar
5. Board Order Administrator
6. Board Order Administrator
7. Board Order Administrator
8. Case Coordinator
9. Case Coordinator
10. Case Coordinator
11. Case Coordinator
12. Distribution Coordinator
13. Distribution and Records Clerk
14. Coordinator, Business Operations
15. Administrative and Financial Assistant
16. Bilingual Receptionist/Secretary
17. Secretary to Chair/Counsel
18. Systems Officer

Strategic Direction

The work of the Review Board continues to evolve quantitatively and qualitatively. There has been a well documented increase in the number of accused persons coming under the jurisdiction of the Review Board. In addition, with the 2010 Supreme Court of Canada decision in Regina v. Conway, every Review Board's jurisdiction to rule on Charter applications and to provide remedies that fall within their statutory jurisdiction has been confirmed. These factors require the Board to upgrade and provide continuing legal supports for Members to ensure that both the Board's processes, and the application of substantive law to its decision making, are on solid legal ground. Ensuring this serves the administration of justice, the public and the parties who appear before the Board.

Accordingly, the Ontario Review Board must be able to adapt and react to changing circumstances to provide the best system possible for carrying out its mandate, and to accommodate and strengthen relationships with its stakeholders. In 2018-2021 the Ontario Review Board continues to focus on the following key areas:

Initiatives Involving Third Parties

The Ontario Review Board:

- Was instrumental in the establishment of the Mental Disorder Court ('102 Court') in the City of Toronto which was initiated to identify and expedite the assessment of mentally disordered persons who have come into conflict with the law in order that their cases may proceed expeditiously. This court also assists in connecting those accused individuals with mental health workers, and provides follow-up treatment in the community. This model has been instrumental in providing a model for, and assisting, the now seven mental health courts in the province who continue the work to improve the system and increase the quality of outcome for the participants. The Court regularly receives visitors from around the globe who are interested in establishing similar courts in their home jurisdictions.
- As one of the busiest Review Boards in Canada, the Ontario Review Board often finds itself in a leadership role. The Board has also continued to support a collaborative relationship with other provincial Review Boards through increased communication and an annual meeting with the other provincial Review Boards.
- The Board fields and responds to inquiries from judicial, legal, medical and academic communities across Canada about its mandate and jurisdiction.
- The Board is accessible to courts and the judiciary for consultation on issues that may arise when an accused person is found NCR or unfit, endeavours to enhance the timeliness and quality of service provided to the criminal justice system and the community at large and fosters support for the accused persons who come within our jurisdiction.
- The Board works with the federal government and other provincial Review Boards to support research and recommend policy development by way of amendments to the Criminal Code.
- The Board will continue its efforts to rationalize and promote efficient hearings, especially in respect of Initial and Restriction of Liberty hearings. This may involve consultation with stakeholders, and initiating pilot projects to test scheduling and hearing procedures. Pre-hearing conferences will be convened for all initial hearings where the accused is either detained in jail or living in the community, in order to narrow issues, determine if an assessment is required, and witnesses need to be called. Where an accused is not connected to a hospital at the time of an initial hearing the ORB will have to ensure that there is sufficient information to conduct a hearing.

Information Management and Information Technology

The Board will:

- Continue to provide Dispositions and Reasons for Dispositions to QuickLaw, and WestLaw, allowing the legal community access to Ontario Review Board decisions and promoting the transparency of the process;
- Continue to update and expand its web site to inform the public and the media about the Ontario Review Board.
- Continue to keep the Ontario Review Board's website fully compliant with the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA) and the French Language Services Act (FLS).
- Continue to develop capacity for electronic communication with Board members and parties in an effort to increase efficiency.
- Continue to engage in green initiatives by promoting electronic distribution of documents, and maximize records management efficiencies by scanning and electronically filing hearing and exhibit materials.
- Continue to build a Member Resources section on its web site which will include up to date legal support, member-accessible versions of Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code, provide links to caselaw and Board dispositions, and include an e-binder of significant decisions with a detailed Table of Contents and Member-supported tools, including informational Bulletins of legal and clinical interest.
- The Board is currently working to improve the use of technology and modernize service delivery with respect to the following:
 - Collaborating with Health Services I & IT Cluster to coordinate a cloud managed solution allowing for secure messages not to travel via the internet and enabling efficient exchange of information and collaboration between the Board, its members and parties
 - Case Management system contract renewal for more efficient scheduling processes and to enhance prehearing conference tracking
 - New Digital Facsimile to send and receive documentation on line allowing members to send documents such as dispositions from electronic devices at the hearing cutting down on the usage of paper and space

Education and Continuous Learning

The Board has a firm commitment to providing a high quality of service and expertise for the community and the accused persons who come before the Board. Board member education and training is a key component of this commitment and will be carried out in a number of ways throughout 2018-2021:

- New Board Member Training: New members will continue to receive reading materials and resources directed specifically to their needs including slides, case law, and textbook material. In addition, new members are provided with training and on-site opportunities to observe hearings prior to being scheduled to sit on hearings.
- Annual Education Sessions: The Board will continue to provide three Education Sessions every year, including an Annual Conference for all members, and an education conference for legal member/Alternate Chairs and public members, with meetings for mental health practitioners (psychologists and psychiatrists) on an as needed basis. In consultation with the Board's Chair and legal counsel, the Board's Coordinator of Psychiatric Resources will present topical speakers and agendas designed to provide Board members with the most up-to-date clinical information relevant to their day-to-day work as decision-makers.
- Periodic Communiques: The Board will communicate updates and changes in the law and forensic psychiatry/psychology to its members throughout the year. The Board will ensure that its members (lawyers, judges, laypersons, and mental health professionals) are kept up-to-date with the scientific, clinical and legal developments relevant to the adjudicative, forensic and decision-making processes that members must engage in.
- The Board will provide the resources, training and team building to both staff members and Board members, which are appropriate for the roles and responsibilities of each group.

Relationship with the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care

The Adjudicative Tribunals Accountability, Governance and Appointments Act, 2009 (ATAGAA) strives to ensure that the Board functions accountably, transparently and efficiently, while remaining independent in its decision-making. The Act was fully proclaimed in June 2011.

As required by ATAGAA, the Board has filed and made publicly available eight governance and public accountability documents. The Board has participated in an administrative review of the tribunal which is required by the Act once every six years. The Board, and the Ministry, have agreed to move forward collaboratively with implementation planning on some the ATAGAA Review recommendations such as improving technology.

The following eight documents have been completed by the ORB and made publicly accessible through the ORB's website:

1. Memorandum of Understanding
2. Mandate and Mission Statement
3. Consultation Policy
4. Service Standard Policy
5. Ethics Plan
6. Member Accountability Framework
7. Business Plan

8. Annual Report

The Board is currently working on a recommendation from the first ATAGAA review to develop a plan to maximize operations by improving the use of technology to modernize service delivery and continue to meet its goals.

The Board has recently participated in a second administrative review which is currently ongoing.

Environmental Scan: Assessment of Issues Facing the Board

An Increasing Caseload

At present, the Board over 1600 persons subject to its jurisdiction. Each of these individuals has come under the Board's jurisdiction following a verdict in court of either unfit to stand trial, not criminally responsible due to mental disorder or not guilty by reason of insanity, due to mental disorder. The latter verdict refers to those persons who entered the system prior to 1992 when Bill C-30 changed “not guilty by reason of insanity” to “not criminally responsible.”

An Increase in Hearings

The Board is not only required to hold an initial hearing for each new accused person within a prescribed time period, but must hold an annual hearing for every accused person already in the system. Therefore, as the number of accused persons entering the system increases, the number of initial hearings increases. When more individuals are entering the system than are exiting it, the subsequent increase in annual hearings exerts ongoing pressure. (See Performance Measures and Targets section for specific timelines.)

Number of Accused vs. Number of Hearings

The number of accused persons who are subject to the jurisdiction of the Board has been increased by approximately 75% since 1999 (Winko decision). For example in 1999/2000 the number of accused persons under the Board's jurisdiction was 913. Over the past ten years, there has been an average of 250 new accused per year. This resulted in an increased number of hearings. In comparison to 2002/2003 when the Board held 1233 hearings, in 2016/2017, the Board conducted 2048 hearings.

It seems to be the case that as lawyers, representing the Attorney General and the accused person, become more familiar with Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code, there is a consequential increase in the number of unfit and NCR verdicts. At the same time hearing complexity, and public scrutiny and media attention over high profile cases is also increasing. Most hospitals have now elected to be represented at their hearings by counsel. Additionally, recent appellate decisions have re-emphasized the need to schedule and conduct certain hearings without delay, increasing administrative and fiscal pressures. The Board has no control over these trends.

Changes to the Criminal Code

In 2006, Part XX.1 was amended in a number of ways. Some of these amendments have altered the jurisdiction of the Board and assisted it in its mandate to seek out and obtain information. Others have increased the obligations of the Board and resulted in increased costs. The following amendments are worthy of note:

- Victim Impact Evidence and the Participation of Victims:

The Board is satisfying the requirement that it notify victims of upcoming proceedings and of their statutory right to provide a victim impact statement in writing or to attend and read their victim impact statement to the Board in person. Since the 2006 amendments to the Criminal Code, and continuing to date, increased administrative time is required to meet the Board's obligations to victims, and to provide them with information about the Board. The Board's database of notified victims now surpasses the number of accused persons under the Board's jurisdiction.

- Board Ordered Assessments:

The ability of the Review Board to order assessments under section 672.121 of the Criminal Code enhances the ability of the Board to carry out its inquisitorial function and to carry out its mandate. The Review Board makes assessment orders and receives a report from a psychiatrist in accordance with each of those orders. In 2016/2017, the Board ordered 38 assessments.

- Board Recommended Stays of Proceedings for Permanently Unfit Individuals:

Pursuant to the Supreme Court of Canada's decision in the Demers case, the Review Board may now make a recommendation that the court which found the accused unfit hold a hearing and grant a stay of proceedings. That is contingent upon the Board concluding that the person is both permanently unfit and no longer a significant threat to the safety of the public. This legislated change allows the courts to retain the final decision-making power, but includes the Review Boards in making recommendations. This amendment permits mentally disordered persons who are permanently unfit to be discharged from the system who would, under the previous statutory regime, not be eligible for an absolute discharge despite no longer being a threat to the public. In 2016/2017, 3 unfit accused were recommended for stays of proceedings under this section.

- Bill C-14 came into force on July 10, 2014. The Board’s new responsibilities will add considerably to the time required to manage our case load. The Board will now be required to notify victims whenever an accused is either absolutely or conditionally discharged, every time the Board sends a High Risk Accused (‘HRA’) to court for review, and every time the Board receives a new accused with a verdict of NCR. The Board must also ensure hearings are adjourned at any of the junctures to permit the victim time to file statements.

Divestment of Provincial Psychiatric Hospitals

All provincial psychiatric hospitals formerly operated by the Ontario government have now been divested, including the Waypoint Centre for Mental Health Care, the single institution designated as maximum secure. The governance of these hospitals has been transferred to public controlling bodies, such as Boards of Directors. So far this change in governance has not had a profound effect on the processes and overall service delivery of the Ontario Review Board. There are some indications, however that stakeholders in the forensic system will look to the Board as a source to indemnify them for hearing- related costs, and beyond. This issue was recently litigated in the case of R v. Taylor [2010] ONCA 35 (CanLII) in which the Court of Appeal for Ontario determined that the Board via the Ministry of Health is required to fund the costs of Board-ordered assessments. The Board will continue to monitor and report on the impact of divestment on its operations as issues arise. This is an anomalous situation in that psychiatric assessments ordered in respect of the same accused by the courts are paid for by the Ministry of the Attorney General.

Resources needed To Meet Goals and Objectives

Financial Resources

The Board receives its annual funding allocation through a separate Vote and Item. The Board’s allocation remained constant at $3,975,400 from 2008-09 through 2011-12 and throughout this period the Board exceeded its budget in order to meet its statutory obligation. The deficit was a result of an increasing caseload and related operational costs of the Board. The government ‘right-sized’ to an allocation of $7,375,400 in the 2012-13 fiscal year. However, based on recent trends, the Ontario Review Board does not anticipate any change in the cost pressures flowing from caseloads.

Human Resources

Board Members:

In order to ensure that the hearings are conducted efficiently and cost-effectively, it is critical that the Board continues to attract qualified, experienced individuals to adjudicate at its hearings as mandated in the Criminal Code. The Code requires that both a psychiatrist and alternate chair be in attendance at every hearing. The Board continues to be well served by the retired justices and respected senior lawyers who preside as alternate chairs, but it is essential that the Board maintain an adequate number of psychiatrists, including French-speaking psychiatrists, who must be available as members of the Board to attend hearings throughout the province. The Chair ensures that the diversity of Ontario is reflected through the Board's membership.

Staff:

The Staff are committed to working within the legislated time frames in order to meet the Board's mandate. The Board continues to review its operational processes regularly to ensure balance between caseload and staff resources.

Due to the high number of hearings, issuing Dispositions and Reasons for Dispositions in a timely fashion can also be challenging for the Board's administrative staff.

Performance Measures and Targets

As mentioned, the core function of the Ontario Review Board is to conduct hearings and issue Dispositions in accordance with the Criminal Code, and within the legislated timeframes. For initial hearings this represents 45 or 90 days after the court verdict is rendered, as the case may be. Once an initial Disposition has been made, the Review Board must hold a hearing within every 12 months thereafter for as long as the Board retains jurisdiction over the person. Meeting these legislative requirements represent the primary measures of the Board's performance.

Board members, all of whom are appointed on a part time basis, are generally flexible in accommodating the fluctuating demand for scheduling hearings as dictated by the legislated deadlines. While hearing schedules are adequately met, the Board's performance may be affected by the administrative requirements of each hearing.

Performance Management:

Currently, Dispositions are generally issued from two days to two weeks post-hearing. Reasons for Dispositions follow. It is a priority of the Board to issue a Disposition within ten days after the hearing.

The Board is also pursuing a number of initiatives which may assist in reducing hearing costs and facilitating the process, such as:

- Educating Board members on administrative issues;
- Working with the other provincial Review Boards to make recommendations to the federal government concerning proposed changes to the Criminal Code of Canada;
- Working with the province's designated psychiatric hospitals on measures to reduce overall hearing costs and to improve efficiency;
- Improving administrative efficiency through technology;
- Focus on the four key target objectives identified below.

Targets:

Meeting the legislated timelines in the Criminal Code of Canada represents a chief target for the ORB. The annual deadline is set according to the previous hearing for each accused person.

- The Board will convene hearings and issue dispositions 45 days post NCR/Unfit court verdicts;
- The Board will convene hearings and issue dispositions 90 days post NCR/Unfit verdict if the court makes a disposition;
- The Board will schedule hearings as soon as practicable following notification of Restriction of Liberty and when convening Early Reviews;
- The Board will schedule annual hearings 12 months post disposition date

The Board will encourage all members to provide reasons for dispositions within four weeks on routine matters and as soon as practicable for more complex cases. The Board maintains a tracking system to follow up and encourage compliance with these targets.

The Board will continue to pursue methods for increasing the efficiency of its operations and processes, and for delivering a high quality of service.

Key target objectives have been identified:

- Reduction in hearing times through more extensive pre-hearing conferencing,
- Reduction in the time from hearing to the production of Reasons (with 4 weeks being the goal),

- Reduction in the number of adjourned hearings, accomplished through:
 - More extensive pre-hearing conferencing, and
 - Scheduling of hearings 9 months in advance (so as to avoid parties' 'conflicts')
- Pre-hearing conferences being conducted for all initial hearings where the accused is not in hospital in order to further reduce the number of adjournments.

The Board must decide whether the accused is detained and if so what level of security, and what access, the accused person will have to the community.	training is confirmed immediately after OIC is received. New members are not assigned to hearings until training program is completed. The Board continues to provide education sessions on relevant topics and communicates updates in the area of law and forensic psychiatry.
The Board is mandated by the Criminal Code of Canada to schedule hearings within 45 or 90 days of the court verdict or every 12 months or more thereafter, according to the legislated timeline. Increased caseload and case management complexities will impact on the Board's ability to meet prescribed timelines as outlined in the Criminal Code. Failure of the Board to meet its mandate within the timeframes prescribed could result in serious consequences, such as increased appellate oversight, and a potential for loss of confidence in the processes of the Board, unwarranted intrusion into the liberty of those who are entitled to increased liberty or increased risk to the public due to delays.	Daily initial hearing and weekly caseload scheduling reports are automatically generated from the case management system and reviewed by management with staff. Disposition and Reasons for Disposition status reports are used by the staff board order administrators to verify with the Alternate Chairs the number of outstanding dispositions that need to be issued within the 45 and 90 days and reasons that need to be issued within the Board's new standard of four weeks. These reports are a tool to manage both workload priorities and address backlog issues due to increased work load or staff absence with the assigned backup staff administrators.
The steady pattern of caseload increase of the Ontario Review Board may place a pressure on its allotted funding.	Keep Ministry informed of expenditures with timely financial reporting to prepare for and manage shortage of funds if necessary.
