MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

ONTARIO REVIEW BOARD

*Office of the Honourable
Douglas H. Carruthers, Q.C.*

Message from the Chair

The Ontario Review Board was established under Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code as an integral part of the criminal justice system. The Board exercises jurisdiction over individuals found by the courts to be either unfit to stand trial on account of a mental disorder or not criminally responsible on account of a mental disorder.

Each hearing conducted by the Board involves balancing two fundamental rights: the individual's right to liberty and the public's right to safety. The issues are complex and the decisions have a significant impact on the parties and the public. The Board has a high volume work load to meet each year.

As Chair of the Board, I commend the members and staff for their commitment and dedicated performance in the past year, and I look forward to their continued efforts as we address the many challenges that lie ahead.

The Honourable Douglas H. Carruthers, Q.C.

OVERVIEW OF THE BOARD

The Ontario Review Board is a unique tribunal that forms a critical component of the Canadian justice system. While it operates within the province of Ontario, the Ontario Review Board is not governed by provincial legislation, but by federal legislation.

Established under Part XX.1 of the Criminal Code of Canada, the role of the Ontario Review Board is clearly defined as follows:

A Review Board shall be established or designated for each province to make or review dispositions concerning any accused in respect of whom a verdict of not criminally responsible by reason of mental disorder or unfit to stand trial is rendered, and shall consist of not fewer than five members appointed by the Lieutenant Governor in council of the province...”(Part XX.1)

While the role of each provincial Review Board is the same from province to province, the Criminal Code states that “a Review Board shall be treated as having been established under the laws of the province.” This statement recognizes the fact that the efficiency and effectiveness of each Board in each province hinges on its connection to the province’s psychiatric facilities and mental health delivery system.

The Board’s procedures are directed solely by the Criminal Code of Canada and the Public Inquiries Act. Unlike adjudicative agencies that are created by provincial statute, the Ontario Review Board is not subject to the provisions of the Statutory Powers Procedure Act. Appeals from decisions of the Ontario Review Board are directly to the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

JURISDICTION OF THE BOARD

The Ontario Review Board has jurisdiction over individuals, referred to as “accused,” who the Ontario courts have found to be unfit to stand trial due to mental disorder, or not criminally responsible for the commission of a crime due to a mental disorder.

Individuals found to be unfit to stand trial are under the jurisdiction of the Board until the Board finds them fit to stand trial. At that time, they are returned to the courts to be tried in the normal course.

The Board’s responsibility is to hold a hearing and to make a disposition for each accused under its jurisdiction, taking into consideration the “need to protect the public from dangerous persons, the mental condition of the accused, the reintegration of the accused into society and the other needs of the accused.”

These complex decisions are made in each hearing conducted by the Ontario Review Board. They affect both the liberty of individuals and the safety of the public. The importance of the Board’s decisions as they relate to these basic human rights is further glimpsed in the fact that appeals of the Board’s decisions go directly to the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

Decisions of the Board are referred to as dispositions. Following the hearings, the Ontario Review Board renders one of three dispositions:

- 1) An absolute discharge (for an accused person who is not criminally responsible, if the accused person is not a significant threat to the safety of the public);
- 2) A discharge subject to conditions; or
- 3) Detention in a hospital, subject to conditions.

For those detained in hospital, the Board issues a warrant for detention as set out in the Criminal Code.

Other than absolute discharges, dispositions of the Board are usually in effect for one year, at which time a review hearing is held before the Board.

Parties to a hearing typically include the accused, the person in charge of the hospital in which the accused is detained or to which the accused reports and a representative of the Attorney General. Other persons who have a substantial interest in protecting the interests of the accused may be made a party if the Review Board is of the opinion that it is just to designate such persons as parties.

ORGANIZATION OF THE BOARD

In carrying out its mandate as directed by the Criminal Code, the Board operates in a fashion similar to the courts.

As of March 31, 2006, the Ontario Review Board had 146 members. In addition to the Chair, Board members include 31 alternate chairs, 23 lawyers, 51 psychiatrists, 14 psychologists, and 26 public members. All are residents of Ontario. The members of the Board are appointed by Order-in-Council.

The Criminal Code stipulates that the Chairperson must be a judge of the Federal Court or of a provincial superior, district or county court, or a person who has retired from or is entitled to be appointed to such a judicial office. "Chairperson" by definition includes not only the Chairperson as appointed by the provincial Cabinet, but also any other qualified member whom the Chairperson designates as an "Alternate Chairperson" to act on the Chairperson's behalf. In Ontario, the Chair appoints Alternate Chairs who are usually lawyers with 10 years experience, judges or retired judges.

The Criminal Code also specifies that a quorum for a hearing consists of three Board members. Each panel must have a Chairperson or Alternate Chairperson, a psychiatrist and any other member. The Ontario Review Board usually sits in panels of five consisting of the Chair, two psychiatrists, or one psychiatrist and one psychologist, a lawyer and a public member.

An initial hearing, held after an individual has been found to be not criminally responsible or unfit to stand trial by the courts, is usually conducted in the hospital where the accused is detained or directed to attend, or in a court house. The Board no longer holds hearings in detention centres. The Board is required by statute to hold an initial hearing within 45 or 90 days following the verdict in court.

An annual hearing is required for those accused who are already under the Board's jurisdiction. Annual reviews are conducted in the provincial psychiatric facility where the accused is detained or reporting, in a courtroom, or other meeting room open to the public.

Those who are declared to be unfit to stand trial must be represented by counsel. A large number of the accused who are not criminally responsible are also represented by counsel. At each hearing, evidence from the hospital where the accused is detained or reporting is reviewed. The Board deliberates on the evidence heard, and then issues a written disposition. If that individual continues to be detained in hospital, the Board issues a new warrant.

Reasons for disposition are issued as a separate document some time later.

PERFORMANCE MEASURES AND TARGETS

The core business of the Ontario Review Board is to conduct hearings and issue dispositions in accordance with the Criminal Code within the mandatory timeframes - 45 or 90 days after the verdict is rendered as the case may be.

During the fiscal year 2005/06 the courts found 86 accused to be unfit to stand trial and 183 not criminally responsible on account of mental disorder for a total of 183 new accused coming under the jurisdiction of the Board (see Figure 1). This represents a 42% increase in the number of new accused over the previous year and an 82% increase since 2003/04.

The growing number of new accused has a significant financial impact on the Board. The initial hearings for these new accused are more expensive to convene as they require more travel and accommodation. The hearings are held where the accused is being detained or resides. These matters are usually heard singly rather than organized with a group of other cases as are the annual hearings because they need to be conducted within 45 days of the court verdict. There are often adjournments when only minimal information is available as to the mental condition of the accused or what, if any, threat the accused poses to the safety of the public. In fact, amendments to the Criminal Code that came into force on June 30, 2006 attempted to address this lack of information and there are now some provisions that allow a Review Board to order an assessment of the accused if such evidence is necessary to make a disposition.

After making a disposition, the Review Board must review that disposition within 12 months and every 12 months thereafter for as long as the disposition remains in force.

In addition, on initial hearings and annual hearings, the Criminal Code provides for a discretionary early review of a disposition at the request of any party other than the hospital. An early review is mandatory if requested by the hospital or if an individual's liberties are restricted for more than seven days. The total number of all hearings conducted by the Board in 2005/06 was 1,430 (see Figure 2).

Those found Unfit to Stand Trial remain under the jurisdiction of the Board until such time as a court either finds the accused fit to stand trial or until the court grants a stay for those unfit accused it finds both permanently unfit and not a significant threat to the safety of the public.

Those accused that are not criminally responsible (NCR) or under the former term not guilty by reason of insanity (NGRI) remain under the jurisdiction of the Board until such time as they are granted an absolute discharge by the Board. In 1999 the Supreme Court decision in Winko clarified the test for an absolute discharge, and the Board experienced a significant increase in the number of absolute discharges it granted (see Figure 3).

As a result the Board is seeing a reduction in the growth of the number of accused that are under its jurisdiction compared with the growth seen in the period 1992/93 to 2001/02 (see Figure 4).

The variables as outlined above dictate the Board’s workload. They can fluctuate dramatically from month to month. The Board’s performance is measured by its ability to meet a demanding schedule and deliver quality service.

Occasionally, there are circumstances under which the Board is unable to meet deadlines for hearings, but this represents a small percentage of overall scheduled hearings. Reasons for an adjourned hearing include:

- Adjournment at the request of the party;
- Failure of the Court to notify the Board of new accused; or
- Clerical error.

The Board will continue to pursue methods of increasing the efficiency of its operations and processes, and the delivery of a high quality of service.
